DFW INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT'S "VIRTUAL ROAD SHOW" DEBUTS IN SOUTH PACIFIC, ASIA, EUROPE

POST 9/11 RESULTS GIVE AIRLINE EXECUTIVES CRITICAL INFORMATION FOR FUTURE GROWTH

DFW INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT, Texas (March 11, 2002) — Airline executives from Auckland to London began their business day reviewing the Airport's "virtual road show" at <http://webevents.broadcast.com/dfwairport/pressannouncement031102>, and DFW executives are encouraged by the feedback coming from around the globe.

"We're hearing very positive things from key players in the airline and aviation world, and as they begin to grow and expand again, we've got the solid business information to assist them with their decisions," says Joe Lopano, executive vice president of marketing at DFW. "We're cautiously optimistic about the future, and with the economy showing real signs of recovery and spring break travel looking strong, we believe the airline industry will continue its steady comeback."

DFW has steadily beaten its own forecasted levels of recovery post 9/11. In the "virtual road show," Airport executives detail the recovery from a 61 percent decline in traffic immediately after the attacks to just an 11 percent decline in February. The Airport also details the strong recovery of its two hub carriers, American and Delta. Since September 11, American's scheduled DFW departures have increased 9 percent since their low point in November, while Delta's departures have increased 20 percent since their low point in October. Other key statistics cover international travel and the strong surge in international cargo, particularly from DFW to Asia-Pacific.

The online presentation, presented in broadband format on Yahoo! Broadcast, is also accessible to the traveling public. The road show features Lopano, DFW chief executive officer Jeff Fegan and Kevin Cox, senior executive vice president at DFW. It will be available for viewing 24 hours per day for 30 days.

Located halfway between the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, DFW International Airport is the world's third busiest, serving 60 million passengers a year. Offering nearly 2,000 flights daily, DFW Airport provides nonstop service to 129 domestic and 26 international destinations worldwide.
